KEVIN SIMISTER, of Hawkins, Cloward & Simister in Orem, was awarded the Outstanding CPA in Public Practice by the Utah Association of Certified Public Accountants.

SIMISTER

“Kevin is an amazing person. As a leader among the state’s 2,800 CPAs, he invests energy and thought into making the right decisions, not just the apparent decision or easy way out,” says Jeannie Patton, CEO of the CPA organization. “Although his firm is outside the state’s primary business area, Hawkins Cloward & Simister is one of the most highly respected CPA firms in the state. That doesn’t happen by accident.”

Simister is the first Utah County CPA to receive this award.

TROY ADAMS, PHD FAWHP, has been appointed Graduate Program Director for the doctor of science degree in health promotion and wellness at the Provo-based Rocky Mountain University of Health Professions.

Dr. Adams’ primary research focus is the use of technology to influence health outcomes, particularly among college students and working adult populations. He has been engaged in the health promotion industry for more than 20 years, with 13 as a college professor.

JOHN PILMER and his Orem-based company, PilmerPR, have been named a finalist for the Golden Spike Award for excellence in publicity and media relations.

“As we continually raise the bar in media relations, it’s great to be singled out as experts in our field and recognized alongside other great Utah communicators,” says John Pilmer, president of PilmerPR.

PilmerPR was recognized for work with Certiport, an American Fork-based company that promotes digital literacy worldwide.

SHELLI GARDNER, CEO and co-founder of Stampin’ Up!, was named a finalist in two categories of the fourth annual Stevie Awards for Women in Business, an international competition recognizing the accomplishments of outstanding businesswomen and their companies.

A Riverton resident, Gardner is a finalist for the Lifetime Achievement Award and Best Entrepreneur Award (non-services businesses — up to 2,500 employees).

TenFold, a software products company, made the following announcements.

MARK MUGLESTON was hired as a consultant. Muggleston received his bachelor of science in business information systems from BYU with a minor in family history.

Prior to joining TenFold, Muggleston worked as a team lead, North American World Wide Support, for the LDS Church.

MARK ANDERSEN was hired as a principal developer. Andersen received his bachelor’s of science, engineering design and computer graphics at BYU, and his master’s of science, computer science from Loyola Marymount University.

Prior to joining TenFold, Andersen was with Quantum 3D, based in Huntsville, Ala.

JILLYN HAYMORE was honored with Max International’s Top Retailer award at the company’s international convention.

Haymore created her own Web site where she now wholesales MaxGXL, a composition patented natural product, which increases energy and controls inflammation.

Haymore lives in Utah Valley and taught music in the Nebo School District for nine years.

Pleasant Grove resident AARON WELLS has been named general manager of the Orem Owlz baseball team.

Wells has spent seven years in Minor League Baseball, the last five with the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim, the Major League affiliate of the Owlz.

“Aaron’s connections to the Utah Valley community, his expertise in sports, and his undeniable leadership qualities made him an easy choice,” says Jeff Katofsky, majority team owner. Q
