Women constitute the majority of the staff at Cataract & Lasik Center of Utah. From the reception area to the surgical suite, these women are committed to delivering exceptional service and making patients feel like family.

Between the 21 female employees, there are 9 medical degrees including a doctor of medicine, a doctor of optometry, three certified ophthalmic assistants, three registered nurses and one certified registered nurse anesthetist.

The Cataract & Lasik Center of Utah specializes in improving lives through service, and patients often comment on the compassion and professionalism of the staff. The environment at the Cataract & Lasik Center of Utah is one of integrity, mutual respect and creativity.

"We help people achieve visual freedom to pursue their goals, passions and dreams," Dr. Jamie M. Monroe says. "Our staff recognizes that by helping others achieve their best vision, we have a positive impact in our patients' lives and throughout our community."

Dr. Monroe specializes in iLASIK, the new standard in laser vision correction. iLASIK combines the precision and safety of the Intralase and VISX lasers for an all-laser customized procedure. Dr. Monroe also performs state-of-the-art cataract surgery, offering the latest intraocular lens technologies to reduce dependence on glasses.

"Vision is one of our most treasured senses, many times one we take for granted," Dr. Monroe says. "By having regular preventive eye care, our physicians can detect and treat pathology earlier, hopefully prior to the development of irreversible vision loss."

business tip EXPECTATIONS

Professional relationships are most rewarding to all parties when everyone's expectations are met. Our entire team endeavors to create an environment that meets or exceeds the key expectations for excellence in accountability, accuracy, attitude, adaptability, aptitude, appearance, attendance and accomplishment. Such expectations support our focus on providing the highest standard of care for our patients in a workplace environment where each team member is a valued, contributing professional.
